Ford is sure he can win in South

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the Natchez to Mobile, President Ford tuned his campaign themes to the conservative Deep South, and his strategists said those overtures to Jimmy Carter's neighbors showed that the President can win there in November.

Ford said after his first Southern campaign swing that he expects to score some surprises in Southern states. A spokesman said Monday night the President thought his three-day trip was "just terrific."

Ford talked of a strong, high-budget national defense; scorned federal gun control; and added a tough law-and-order message in his Miami windup Monday.

It seemed to play well in deepest Dixie. There were thousands of Southerners to listen and cheer in the levee rallies Saturday during his Mississippi River cruise on the sternwheeler Natchez, more thousands on the President's route.

But the cheers and crowds of September don't necessarily mean votes on Nov. 2.

Ford and his advisers say that they will, arguing that Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee, is too liberal for the tastes of his own Southern homeland. But Carter also emphasizes conservative positions in the South — and he does it in a down-home drawl. That could be a tough combination to beat.

Ford advisers said the President was tailoring his emphasis to his audiences. He raised no new issues. His call on Monday for a crusade against crime, with tough measures against repeat offenders and violent, streetwise youths, fit the same pattern.

By White House estimates, Ford saw or was seen by 113,000 people during his heavy campaigning on Saturday and Sunday.

But there was no gauge to determine how many people were there to see a president of the United States, and how many were there to applaud a campaigning Republican politician.

"You'd have to say that perhaps 25 per cent of the crowds came to see a president of the United States," said William Greener, deputy chairman of Ford's campaign committee.

Candidates back home

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

Both Jimmy Carter and President Ford are back at their home bases, with Ford resuming the role of White House incumbent and Carter re-evaluating campaign strategy.

Ford returned to Washington on Monday after his first extensive campaign trip of the season, a three-day tour of the South.

And he began laying plans to portray himself as a world leader in advance of his second debate with Carter, scheduled for San Francisco on Oct. 6.

Carter, who has seldom been off the campaign trail in the past month, was at home in Plains, Ga., today for two days of rest and to re-evaluate his strategy for the remainder of the campaign.

The break in campaigning for Carter had been planned for some time. Aides had long said the Democratic presidential nominee was planning to take some time off near the end of September to decide how he could best spend his time for the remainder of the campaign.

Carter aides said the decisions made in Plains in the next few days will determine where Carter will spend the bulk of his effort in October.

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, took Monday off. Ford running mate Sen. Bob Dole was campaigning in the Midwest.

Ford's plans are to remain at the White House, meeting with a procession of visiting foreign ministers to set the scene for the second presidential debate. The subject of that debate is foreign policy and national security, and Ford's plans call for holding numerous meetings with the foreign leaders to portray him as working on world affairs.

Republican strategists plan for Ford to claim in the San Francisco debate that he is experienced in global diplomacy and that he has conducted a successful foreign policy. On the other hand, Ford will portray Carter as having never dealt with representatives of foreign nations in any official capacity other than as governor of Georgia.

And to help underscore his claim of on-the-job experience, Ford summoned Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress to the White House to discuss Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peacemaking efforts in Africa.

Ford returned Monday night from three days of campaigning in the South, where he toured Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

His schedule calls for him to remain away from campaigning and in the White House until Oct. 4, when he leaves for an extensive Western tour leading up to the debate in San Francisco.

Ford wound up his Southern campaign trip with a speech to some 2,000 policemen, where he vowed to spend the first 100 days of his administration, if he is elected president, in a crusade against crime.

He said his crusade would include a

More talks on Africa scheduled

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian nationalist leader Jshua Nkomo is to leave for neighboring Botswana today for more talks with black African leaders on the changeover from white to black rule in Rhodesia.

Also headed for the Botswana capital of Gaborone are U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's top Africa aide, William Schaefele, and British Minister of State for African Affairs Ted Rowlands.

Rowlands will begin talks on setting up a constitutional conference demanded by the leaders of the five "front-line" black African states as the next step in transferring power from Rhodesia's 278,000 whites to its 6.4 million blacks.

Nkomo is considered a top candidate to be Rhodesia's first black prime minister. He denied Monday that the five "front-line" black African presidents who met in Lusaka, Zambia, last week, had rejected Kissinger's plan for a transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia. "They have rejected nothing," he said, adding that all they had done was insist that Britain is the only power that can call a conference of Rhodesian leaders to work out a new constitution.

"What they did was remove serious flaws which were in the document that is generally known as the Kissinger plan," he said.

Nkomo said the presidents had produced a "workable document" in their meeting, but he would not disclose what it contained.

The presidents of Zambia, Botswana, Zaire, Mozambique and Tanzania issued a statement after their meeting saying they would not accept the plan for an interim government in Rhodesia outlined by Prime Minister Ian Smith. Smith said the transition administration should be evenly divided between whites and blacks. The five black leaders said it must be dominated by blacks.

Rhodesian Foreign Minister P.K. van der Byl said the black leaders' statement showed "unreliability and irresponsibility." Smith said he was waiting for clarification from the United States and Britain.

The Rhodesian leader added that "it looks as though the Communists are calling the tune in those parts."

But in Washington, William D. Rogers, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, said African leaders had sent diplomatic messages emphasizing that they have not rejected the over-all British-American plan for resolving the Rhodesian crisis, although they disagree with details.

Rogers said the plan — which emerged after an 11-day round of shuttle diplomacy by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — was still "on track." He stressed that the Africans had agreed to attend a conference without preconditions.

"The process is going to require major adjustments by both sides," Rogers told reporters.

The British mission, headed by Minister of State Edward Rowlands, moved up its scheduled departure by 24 hours because London views the situation as urgent.

Rowlands and other officials were to meet in Botswana with Presidents Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Samora Machel of Mozambique, Agostinho Neto of Angola and Sir Seretse Khama of Botswana.

Possum hunt

Leading indicator list declines 1.5% in August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to anticipate future economic trends fell during August for the first time since the current recovery began, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said its composite index of leading indicators fell 1.5 per cent in August, due primarily to a higher layoff rate in manufacturing and reduced business spending.

The drop is the first since February, 1975, and the largest since the 3.4 per cent decline a month before that.

A decline in the index is generally a signal of slower growth in the economy. The initial report is subject to substantial revision, so that the initial figures are not necessarily solid. Most economists consider a three-month drop or increase in the index to be necessary before they consider a change in direction for the economy is indicated.

But the index drop does come after three consecutive months of a rising unemployment rate despite growing employment and in the midst of what administration economists consider a lull in economic growth.

Administration economists have been contending that the lull is only temporary.

The August decline follows a five-tenths of 1 per cent advance in July and leaves the index, which is at 108 per cent of its 1967 average, precisely where it was in May.

Soviet missile program unprecedented: Rumsfeld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is moving to develop nuclear weapons superiority with an unprecedented missile program, says Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

"They are clearly striving not to be on the losing side in the event those weapons are used," Rumsfeld told reporters Monday in updating his annual report to Congress delivered in January.

He said the Russians missile program will give them more nuclear striking power than they need "merely to deter nuclear war."

He also said the installation of new missiles armed with multiple warheads has moved ahead "at a little faster deployment rate than anticipated in January."

Rumsfeld reported that the Russians now have more than 1,500 intercontinental range missiles in land bases and more than 800 in submarines.

This compares with 1,054 U.S.

land-based missiles and 656 in submarine launching tubes.

In summarizing Soviet development, Rumsfeld said "the scope of these programs is unprecedented" either in the Soviet Union or the United States.

He said the Russians still lag behind the United States in the important area of missile accuracy but are improving.

He said "there has not been anything that sufficiently differs from what has been anticipated" by defense and intelligence officials that will require any significant speedup in the U.S. development and deployment of advanced missiles and bombers.

Rumsfeld added, "We should try to see that our strategic deterrent remains healthy."

The defense secretary's report on Soviet missile progress came nine days before President Ford was due to debate defense and foreign policy issues with

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld... charting Soviets' progress

Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter.

Defense officials denied there was any link between the timing of the missile report and the impending debate. Reporters have been asking for an update for months.

"Current trends indicate that by the early 1980's all or most of the Soviets' existing ICBMs could be replaced with the new generation of missiles," Rumsfeld said.

He also estimated that all or most of the current Soviet submarine-launched missiles could be replaced by more advanced weapons by the late 1980's. Both types probably will be equipped, for the most part, with multiple warheads with can be aimed at separate targets hundreds of miles apart.

The United States has been converting most of its ICBM's and submarine-launched missiles to multiple warheads for a number of years.

Rumsfeld said the Russians so far have deployed 170 of the new generation ICBMs, including the SS17 with four warheads, the SS19 with six warheads and the giant SS18 which has been tested with up to eight warheads.

He noted that the 40 SS18s so far placed in combat readiness have only single warheads, but he indicated that intelligence experts expect the Russians to deploy the multiple warhead version "in the near future."

In a departure from the estimate of the arms control agency, Rumsfeld said an intermediate range SS20 missile has not yet been deployed.

This missile, with a reach of up to 3,000 miles, is regarded as a threat to Western Europe.

U.S. spy who spent 21 years in China has no ill feelings WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP) — John T. Downey, who spent 21 years in a Chinese prison as a U.S. spy, says he doesn't feel embittered toward either his captors or U.S. officials, because he was "caught in an enormous clash of opposing politics."

After the "frustration" of early imprisonment, he said, "I came to change my attitudes towards China and the Chinese vis-a-vis the United States as to how much of a threat, if any, they posed to us."

Downey, 46, reflected on his past as one of America's most celebrated cold war prisoners in an interview Monday with The Associated Press. The interview ended three years of self-imposed public silence following a single news conference on his return in 1973.

During most of his captivity from 1952 to 1973, Downey said he felt the policies of both nations made personal intervention in his behalf almost impossible.

"I definitely felt that I was caught in an enormous clash of politics.... That probably was one reason I didn't feel embittered in terms of thinking somebody should have done something for me, because I felt it had gone beyond that point," he said.

Now, with three successful years of Harvard Law School behind him and word Friday that he had passed the Connecticut bar examination, he leaned back in the conference room of his new law firm, fidgeting as he answered questions.

He is reported to have received upwards of $400,000 in back pay from the Central Intelligence Agency after his release from prison, but he refused to disclose the exact amount.

He also declined to answer most questions about his feelings towards the CIA and former President Richard M. Nixon, who played a role in his release.

Downey did say that he joined the CIA in 1951 after graduating from Yale University because, with the United States becoming involved in the Korean conflict, "it was a glamorous thing, a prestige thing."

He and Richard Fecteau of Lynn, Mass., were in a plane that was shot down a year later over Manchuria in northern China while on a CIA mission. Fecteau was released in 1971.

Downey has said he was not physically abused by his captors except for being held in leg irons during his first 10 months in prison, but he said he was subjected to persistent ideological pressure.

Although sentenced to life imprisonment for espionage, he said he was given subtle reasons to hope he might be released. Those hopes reached fruition when he learned of plans for Nixon's historic visit to mainland China.

His release followed Nixon's admission that Downey had been working for the CIA. The United States also asked for his release to join his critically ill mother, who is now confined to a nursing home.

He has returned to his birthplace and joined the "general small town practice" of childhood friend John A. Carrozzella, a former state legislator, and an attorney in this New Haven suburb.

He expects to be sworn in as a lawyer early next month, "something I wanted to do since I was a kid," he said.

Not typical

Patricia Hearst's new home has none of the characteristics of a typical prison. The facility (top) houses both male and female inmates with the emphasis on rehabilitating young and first offenders. Individual rooms (left) are not barred, permitting inmates to look out on a campus-like environment instead of a wall or security fence. The Pleasanton, Calif., facility is two-years-old. (UPI)

Wire fence reminds Patty new home no college dorm

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP) — At first glance, Patricia Hearst's new home seems to be a modern college campus, with casually dressed young men and women lounging on patios, sunbathing on lawns or reading on dormitory steps.

But surrounding it is a tall wire mesh fence, designed to make sure that the forgers, air pirates, drug smugglers and bank robbers don't leave the relaxed surroundings before their graduation date.

The U.S. Bureau of Prisons on Monday assigned the newspaper heiress to the two-year-old Federal Youth Correction Center at Pleasanton to serve her seven-year bank robbery sentence. She becomes eligible for parole in 16 months.

sentencing last Friday.

She was taken Monday to the Alameda County Courthouse for secret testimony before a grand jury investigating her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping. She was expected to identify Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris as two of her abductors, as she did during her bank robbery trial.

Another witness was Miss Hearst's former fiancé, Steven Weed, who was with her at the time of the kidnapping.

Prison officials here say Miss Hearst will be treated just like the other residents of the 10-acre "campus," as the staff calls the prison.

The progressive facility is designed to be as close to the outside world as possible, mainly so prisoners can readjust smoothly to society when released.

The former University of California coed can wear street clothes.

In her spare time, she will have access to the dorm recreational facilities — television, shuffleboard and billiards.

"She will get a job assignment," Meko says. "It might be, for example, in the kitchen, as a clerk in the business office, in the mechanical services as a plumber or electrician, depending on her interests and our needs.

"If she wanted, she could take college courses here to continue her education or correspondence courses."

And she will be free to socialize with the 100 men and 135 women residents between the ages of 18 and 26, listening to the juke box in the recreation center, playing tennis on covered outdoor courts, attending weekend dances and picnics.

She can do almost anything she wishes as long as she doesn't break the three cardinal prison rules: no drugs, no sex and no escape.

'I was just so scared'

Airman recalls ordeal

ALPENA, Mich. (AP) — "I'll stay in the Air Force, but I'm not going to fly," Airman 1.C. Dale J. Solon said Monday.

Solon, a 20-year-old from the Cleveland suburb of Lakewood, was one of five survivors of Sunday's crash of a giant KC135 jet tanker near Alpena. Fifteen others died in the fiery crash.

"I was just so scared," Solon said after his release from Alpena General Hospital for treatment of minor bruises.

The tanker went down in an isolated, marshy woodland about 12 miles southwest of Alpena. Its wreckage was scattered over a wide area.

At first, Solon said, he thought the plane was just making a rough landing.

But then the plane began to toss from side to side, and he heard the wings breaking off. "I felt the plane hitting the ground. Things started flying everywhere and catching on fire," he said. "Things were breaking apart...."

Ironically, Solon's Air Force mechanic job involves regular servicing of huge KC135 Stratotankers like the one he was aboard Sunday when it left K.I. Sawyer AFB near Marquette. The plane, on a training mission, picked up passengers at Kincheloe AFB near Sault Ste. Marie, and was on its way to Wurtsmith AFB near Oscoda to take on more passengers.

The plane was headed for Offutt AFB, Nebraska, for a training session at Strategic Air Command headquarters there.

Solon was the only crew member not seriously injured or killed. The other four survivors were transferred to Brook Army Medical Center at San Antonio, Tex. with extensive burns.

The young airman said he was strapped into the last seat in the plane. As the aircraft hurtled to the ground, he said, he covered his face with his hands and could only think, "When is this thing going to stop so I can get out of here?"

Finally, Solon broke free from his seatbelt and walked out of the plane's 20-foot tail section — the biggest piece of the aircraft left intact.

Outside the wreckage, he found the other four survivors, and helped them move to a nearby clearing where they built a small fire and waited about three hours for help to arrive. "I just tried to keep the other guys warm," Solon said.

The survivors and the bodies were removed by helicopter after local firemen arrived at the scene and cleared a path through the brush with bulldozers.

Air Force investigators said Monday it may be months before they learn what caused the crash. "There was no indication of any trouble," said Col. William Klesert, commander of Wurtsmith Air Force Base. "All we know is that our people lost contact with the plane."

An Air Force investigation team spent several hours at the scene Sunday, conducting

Death Notices

Arthur Bryan Burke

Arthur Bryan Burke, 80, 1608 South Moniteau, a well-known Sedalia barber, died Tuesday at the Harry S. Truman Memorial Hospital in Columbia.

He was born near LaMonte Sept. 9, 1896, son of the late Edgar P. and Irene Brown Burke. On April 24, 1932, he married Madeline Beech, who survives of the home.

Guilty plea heard in stealing case

Martin R. Davis, 23, 3601 South Grand, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court Tuesday morning to felony charges of stealing property valued at more than $50.

Davis was charged with the theft of a citizens band radio, valued at $105, from a truck owned by Lawson Hanrahan, 1309 East Ninth, while the truck was parked at that address June 21.

Davis remains in the county jail in lieu of $2,500 bond, pending completion of a pre-sentence investigation.

Two killed when train hits auto

CALIFORNIA, Mo. (AP) — Two people were killed Monday night when their car was struck by a Missouri Pacific freight train near this central Missouri community.

Dead are Harry B. Jobe, 78, of California, and Nancy E. Thompson, 67, of Jefferson City, Mo.

Authorities said a car driven by Jobe pulled onto the tracks in front of the train at a Moniteau County crossing just north of U.S. 50.

The car was knocked 81 feet by the impact, coming to rest on its top. Jobe, who was driving, was thrown another 40 feet past the vehicle.

drive to place career criminals and "violent and street-wise" youthful offenders behind bars.

But Carter campaign director Hamilton Jordan leaped on the Ford speech immediately.

"That is a strange promise from a man who has been president for more than 700 days already. But perhaps it is a necessary one, since the record of that 700 days shows serious neglect of the crime problem," Jordan said.

The Carter campaign said that under Ford a key program for jailing drug dealers on tax evasion charges was dismantled, the Drug Enforcement Administration was neglected and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration was so mismanaged that Congress has only extended it for one year on a sort of probation.

Carter spent the weekend campaigning on the West Coast, winding up in Evansville, Ind., on Monday night before flying home to Plains.

Earlier, in Portland, Ore., Carter said Ford's economic policies placed another 2.5 million Americans — for a total of 25.9 million — below the official poverty line last year and have created a new class of poor.

Registration of voters is goal

Pettis County Clerk Mary Jane Wilson said Tuesday that her office in the courthouse will remain open until 8 p.m. Friday to allow more persons to register to vote in the Nov. 2 general election.

Oct. 6 is the deadline for persons to register to vote in that election, Mrs. Wilson said.

Three weeks' testimony expected at Bell hearing

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Testimony is expected to last three weeks in the Missouri Public Service Commission hearing which began Monday into a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate increase request.

Increased operating costs prompted the request for $71.7 million increase in gross annual revenues, according to company officials.

It is the fourth such request since 1968 and follows a $32.5 million increase in revenues granted last year.

The telephone company serves 1.3 million customers throughout Missouri. If the rate increase is approved as requested, monthly rates of the average residential or business customer would rise about 15 per cent.

The basic monthly service charge would increase in Cape Girardeau from $6.20 to $7.15; in Springfield from $7.15 to $8.25; in Kansas City from $8.00 to $9.25 and in St. Louis from $8.55 to $9.85.

The company has asked also for a 20-cent charge to calls to directory assistance after a three-call limit per customer has been exceeded.

Exceptions would be made if a person called directory assistance for telephone numbers outside the customer's home area code, for calls made by handicapped customers, or calls from coin telephones, hospitals, hotels and motels.

Southwestern Bell is also seeking to raise installation charges for both residential and business telephones. The company's proposal would increase installation costs of a typical residential telephone from $24 to $44 and for a typical business from $45 to $66.

Stronger warnings ordered on estrogen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sex hormones that an estimated five million American women take to relieve the symptoms of menopause must carry stronger health warnings, the Food and Drug Administration says.

The FDA, in an order issued Monday, said new labels directed at physicians prescribing estrogen must be printed and distributed within the next 60 days.

But the FDA said it wants to hear from the public before it orders other new labels that would explain estrogen risks in plain language for women who take the hormones.

Estrogens for women too old to bear children "are valuable drugs. They are needed when the symptoms of the 'change of life' become severe. The FDA's purpose is to keep these drugs on the market but to reduce overuse and misuse," Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said in a statement.

"Because these drugs can cause harm as well as good and because they are different from many other drugs in that they are given to otherwise healthy women undergoing the natural process of menopause," he said, "the FDA believes it essential that women be informed and that they decide for themselves if the risks are worth the benefits."

The proposed warnings for users of estrogen note that it is estimated that more than half of all women undergoing

New industry to be announced Thursday

The new future occupant of an industrial site located near the Sedalia Municipal Airport and owned by Russell Evans, 310 Poplar Place, will be announced at a noon luncheon Thursday at Walnut Hills Country Club.

City Economic Development Director James Hamm Tuesday declined to reveal the identity of the firm that has apparently purchased the site.

Evans last year announced he had divided a large tract of land he owned near the airport into several sites suitable for manufacturing or other business operations. Evans also last year distributed hundreds of information sheets describing his properties to prospective industries.

Evans was not available for comment Tuesday.

Polk County inquest is rescheduled

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP) — A coroner's inquest scheduled into the deaths of a woman and her three young children who apparently drowned when their car ran down a boat ramp into Pomme de Terre Lake was postponed Monday.

Polk County Coroner Sidney Pitts said the inquest, originally scheduled for today, would be held Wednesday or Friday. Pitts said the postponement was made at the request of the prosecutor to give him more time to contact witnesses.

Killed about midnight Friday were Nancy Myers Wylie, 36; her 3-year-old son, Richard Wylie, and her 8-year-old twins, Karen and Kevin Myers. The family was from Humansville.

Their car reportedly rolled forward down a boat ramp at the lake, about 45 miles north of Springfield. Sheriff Glen P. Carson said the woman's husband, Jeffery Wylie, 30, told him he lost control of the station wagon when his wife bumped his elbow. Carson also quoted Wylie as saying the brakes on the car failed.

Carson said Wylie had told him he managed to escape from the car after it went into the water and swam to shore.

WHO states smallpox is under control

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Nine years ago, smallpox killed two million persons. Today, the World Health Organization (WHO) says there are only seven persons in the world with the disease, and all are in remote desert villages in Ethiopia.

The Ethiopian cases should run their course in two months, WHO officials said Monday. If no new outbreaks occur in the next two years, WHO will declare smallpox officially eradicated, ending a worldwide campaign it began in 1967.

Medical laboratories throughout the world have already begun to destroy stocks of smallpox virus, used to make vaccine, to prevent accidental spread of the disease.

The last seven victims are in three villages isolated in the desert region of Bale, some 200 miles south of Addis Ababa, WHO said. Hardly anyone travels there, and the experts are confident the disease will not spread.

Smallpox is caused by a virus that is transmitted only by direct contact among persons. Before vaccination brought it under control, waves of smallpox swept whole continents, decimating populations and leaving survivors marked with ugly pockmarks and sometimes blind.

State releases jobless figures

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A smaller labor force rather than job expansion pushed Missouri's unemployment rate to 4.9 per cent last month, according to Joh F. Meystrik, director of the Division of Employment Security.

The unemployment rate in July was 5.5 per cent, but Meystrik said about 25,300 fewer persons were in the labor force in August than in July.

There were 1,943,000 persons employed, a drop of 9,400 from July employment.

Explanation of city's new policy to be given here

Ron Scott, employed under the community block grant development program as director of planning and management, will explain aspects of the city's newly-revised affirmative action policy to all city department heads at 4 p.m. Friday in the Municipal Building Council Chambers.

The seven-page document was passed recently by the City Council in order to qualify for federal block grant program funds. However, the new policy will cover all city departments, it was explained.

The policy basically outlines anti-discrimination procedures to be followed in hiring and promoting city personnel and will also cover similar anti-discrimination measures which must be followed by all contractors doing construction work or other projects for the city.

But Greener said that some who stayed to listen might well have been persuaded about the candidate, too.

Greener and White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said there are no firm plans now for further forays into the Deep South. Nessen said decisions on later campaign targets have not been made yet. He said they will depend on polls and other soundings so that Ford's personal vote-hunting can be concentrated on states where his chances are best.

Ford said as he traveled that he is writing off no state. "We thought it was a very good trip," Greener said when it was over. "It proved some things — and one is that we are not writing off the South."

Vandals remain active in city; damage is high

Vandalism continues to be a major problem in Sedalia as $105 in damage was done over the weekend at Sedalia Implement Co., 2205 South Limit.

Police reported that a tractor windshield, was broken and two golf carts were damaged at the business when vandals threw crate boards at them. A fuel line was also broken and the gasoline was taken.

While on routine patrol at 1:18 a.m. Tuesday, police discovered an east window broken at the Laborers Local 588 hall at 1102 East Third. Upon investigation, police found that two offices in the building had been ransacked. However, nothing was reported missing.

In other police news, Mettie E. Hall, Buckner, Mo., reported that $480 was either lost or stolen from her while she was visiting in Sedalia Sept. 19 to 21. She said she did not know where the money had disappeared.

Bonnie J. Crider, 208 East 13th, reported to police the theft of a $130 citizens band radio from her home between 6 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. Monday. An undetermined number of silver dollars were also stolen.

According to police reports, the items were taken from the master bedroom. No signs of forcible entry to the house were found by police.

Gary Lower of Lower Auto Center, 501 West Main, reported the theft of two AM-FM radios, a tape player and a Corvette transmission, valued together at $1,200 from vehicles parked in the front car lot at 2 p.m. Monday. Police reports indicated the vehicles were not locked.

Mike Rush, 1701 East Sixth, reported to police the windshield on his car was broken by a shot from a B.B. gun while he was driving east on Sixth just west of Brown Monday.

Damage to the windshield was estimated at $50.

Lake Ozark blast fatal for man, 72

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A St. Louis man died today from injuries he suffered Monday when he was struck by debris from an explosion while he was boating with his wife at the Lake of the Ozarks.

Authorities said James Drinkard, 72, died at Boone County Hospital in Columbia.

Drinkard suffered head injuries when 25 sticks of dynamite exploded at an excavation site near a cove where he and his wife were in a small fishing boat. Mrs. Drinkard, 68, was not injured.

Ervin: keep freedom burning

EMPORIA, Kan. (AP) — Retired Sen. Sam Ervin spent his 80th birthday anniversary Monday evening entertaining and lecturing about 1,500 people who gathered on the Emporia Kansas State College campus here.

The former North Carolina senator spoke in the style which made him a familiar figure during the Watergate hearings. For 45 minutes, he cracked jokes, and quoted statesman and president Thomas Jefferson, writer Oliver Wendell Holmes and artist Michelangelo.

"I'm glad to escape Washington and come out here to see some sanity," he said.

But Ervin was not joking when he talked of the United States and citizens' responsibilities to it.

"What makes this country is our constitution and our right to pursuit of happiness," he said. He extolled the virtues of what he said were the five greatest freedoms: economic, individual, political, intellectual and religion.

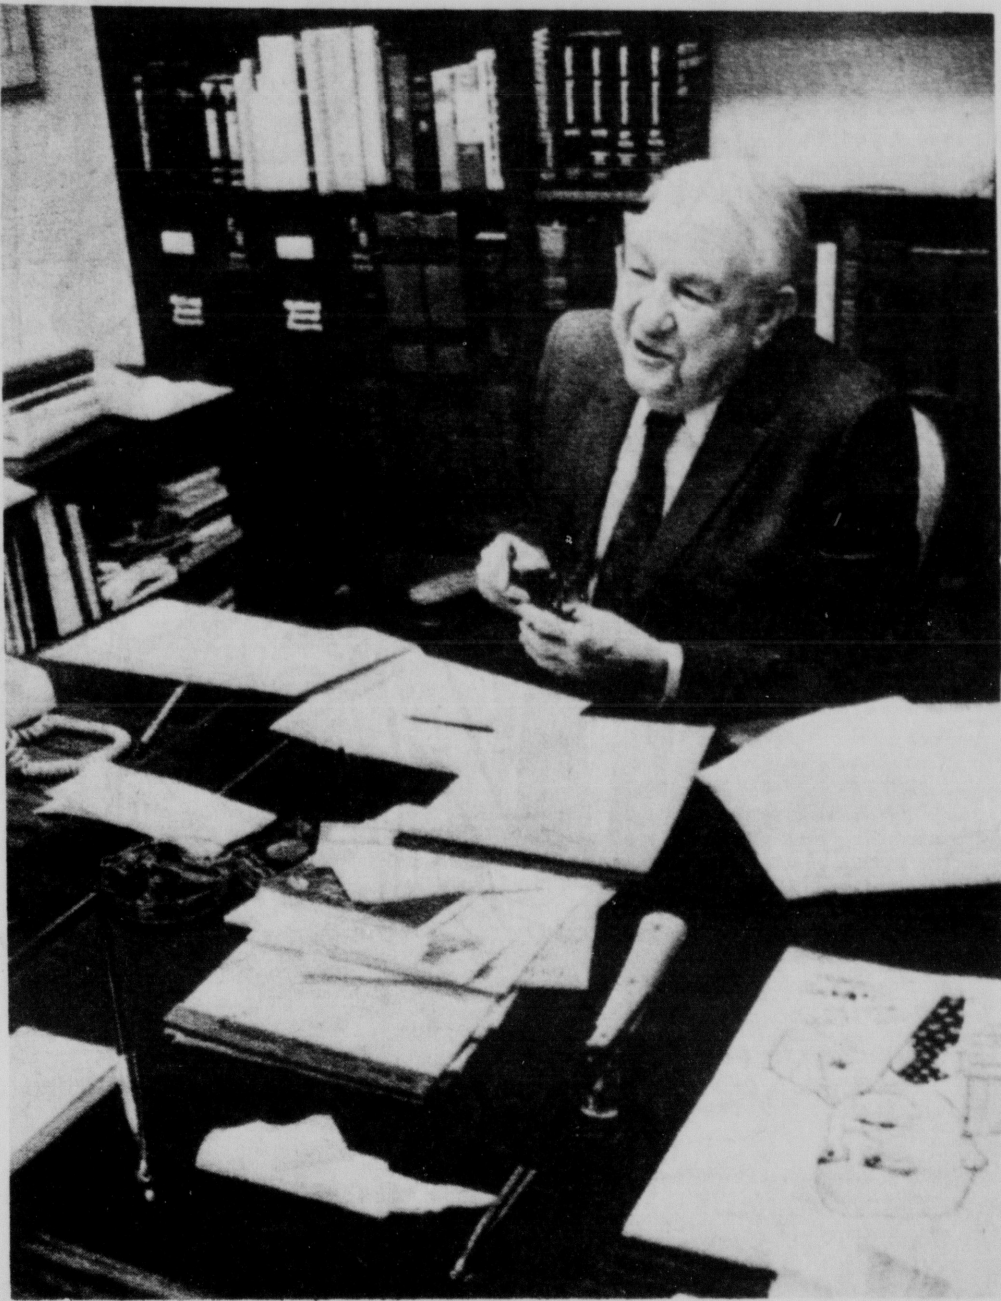

Those freedoms are constantly imperiled, more so than ever, he warned, and it is up to the new generation to preserve these freedoms.

"The constitution gave us a warning that we must exercise eternal vigilance against those who would take them away," he said.

He became philosophical near the end of the speech, remembering his birthday. He said he was aware his days are numbered. And he told students in the audience that his generation will "toss out the torch of freedom" and instructed them to keep it burning bright and hold it high.

During the question-and-answer period after the speech, Ervin said it was good to have a southerner running for the presidency.

"I feel the South has been readmitted," he said of the Democratic candidacy of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Man on the go

Retired North Carolina Sen. Sam Ervin, seen in his Morganton, N.C., law office last week, celebrated his 80th birthday Monday while lecturing in Emporia, Kan.

After his speech, the crowd cheered him with a standing ovation and a resounding chorus of "Happy Birthday." Ervin, always one to have the last word, returned to the microphone and told his listeners they had made his birthday a happy one.

Sen. Cranston robbery victim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., was robbed of about $100 and his wristwatch after he got out of his car in front of his home over the weekend.

Cranston said three young men, one of them holding a pistol, approached him Sunday night.

The robber holding the gun told the senator to "freeze" and demanded the wallet and watch before the three fled on foot.

The United Nations charter was signed in the San Francisco Opera House, June 26, 1945.

SFCC enrollment is up

Enrollment for evening college-credit classes in State Fair Community College's community service program has increased by 62 persons compared to last year's enrollment, according to figures presented by Dean Robert Woolery at the SFCC Board of Trustees meeting Monday night.

Woolery said 141 more persons have enrolled in evening vocational-technical classes offering college-credit compared to last year. And although 79 fewer persons have enrolled in college-credit academic courses, the net enrollment gain in the program's college-credit courses is 62 persons.

"I'd like to believe that people are more degree-conscious," Woolery said. "The trend is that people are taking more classes that offer college credit, as opposed to hobby-interest classes."

Enrollment in the hobby-interest courses has decreased by 59 persons from last year, he said.

Business law, general psychology, wildlife conservation and salesmanship were cited as among the most popular college-credit courses.

In other business, the board unanimously passed a motion to include maternity leave in the college's sick leave policy, in compliance with federal regulations.

The SFCC Faculty and Administrative Handbook previously separated maternity leave policy from sick leave policy.

"You cannot treat a pregnancy different from a sore throat" under the federal regulations, SFCC President Fred Davis said. "You can't ask a staff member to leave (because she is pregnant).

They have to report to you and ask to leave."

Under regular sick leave policy, pregnant women will be entitled to sick leave benefits for 1/2 days per month, accumulating up to 16 days per year. Previously, benefits were stopped when women took maternity leave.

Davis said the college must change any discriminatory policies in order to be eligible for federal funds.

The board also approved the following staff additions: Don Ward, as instructor in principles of bank operations; Richard Middleton, as instructor in the carpenter's apprenticeship program; and Carol Driskill, as instructor in adult basic education.

The contract of Shelley Pileggi, adult basic education supervisor, counselor and teacher, was continued to June 30, 1977.

The board passed a motion designating the Third National Bank as depository of college funds.

Acceptance of a bid of $56,010 by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Stewart to purchase a Walnut Hills home constructed by the SFCC building trades class was unanimously approved by the board.

State receives title to 8,000-acre area

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Title to acreage creating the second largest state park in Missouri was presented to the Department of Natural Resources today by officials of the St. Joe Minerals Corp. in Viburnum.

The title to the 8,000-acre tract was given by St. Joe Minerals President John Duncan to Lt. Gov. William Phelps.

The new St. Joe State Park will become the second largest state park in Missouri, next to the 16,528-acre Lake of the Ozarks.

The tract of land, south of Flat River, includes seven lakes created by mine tailings, forests of pine, oak and hickory, and areas suitable for campground and trails development.

The St. Louis architectural firm of Team Four, Inc., has been selected to draft a master plan by July, 1977 for the park.

No visitors will be allowed at the park until facilities have been developed in about two years.

Agriculture Department told to reassess costs

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An audit of the Missouri Agriculture Department released Monday said the state agency should reassess the costs of some of its programs to determine if fees should be increased to help finance them.

"From our review, it appears the state is incurring significant costs for most of the departmental programs," the audit said.

It was issued by State Auditor George Lehr's office and covered the period for the year ending June 30, 1975.

The audit said fees for various programs administered by the Agriculture Department were established "many years ago."

"To the extent that the statutes were intended to provide a self-sustaining program, inflationary pressures alone would tend to indicate a deficiency in older statutory fees," the audit added.

It recommended that accounting records be established so that all costs, including all indirect costs, can be identified to a specific program.

"Where self-sustaining programs are found to be the intent of the statute, legislation should continue to be pursued to increase the fees where necessary," the audit said.

The auditor's office also recommended increased auditing controls on revenues collected from various types of licenses and inspection fees, as well as federal funds received by the department.

Defeat won't be agonizing

The political recluse of America's First Family, 26-year-old theology student Michael Ford, doesn't think the Ford family would be crushed if "dad" lost the presidential election in November. "We won't be crushed or paralyzed," the Fords' oldest son, a Gordon-Conway Theological Seminary student, said in a rare, wide-ranging interview published in the Boston Globe.

Upcoming debates: pick up the pace

The next presidential debate will be Oct. 6; we hope it will be an improvement over the first one.

What is needed is more oomph. Thursday's exercise was too formal, programed and proper. Maybe if Ford and Carter took the gloves off things would get more interesting.

The first debate was hardly a textbook example of the art. Opportunities for effective rebuttal were missed, perhaps more so by Ford than by Carter, and neither candidate seemed to forcefully drive home his points. One is reminded of John F. Kennedy's performance in the 1960 debates, and wishes that some of his pounce would be exhibited in the current rounds.

Although some polls conducted after the debate gave the edge to Ford, we were more inclined to view it as a stand-off, but one due more to equal ineptness rather than skill.

Part of the problem was perhaps with the format itself, which cast the reporters in a rather passive role. Some of the questions were cream puffs, without a provision for really effective followup. A bulldog like Lawrence Spivak would have been welcome.

Foreign policy and national security will be the subject of the next debate. There are some significant platform differences here that could prove interesting, providing the two candidates exploit them.

The final debate on Oct. 22 will not cover any prearranged subject matter, and could be the most productive of all. But unless the debates get livelier, revealing each candidate in ways they have not so far been revealed, the confrontations may not turn out to be as decisive as they were billed.

Conservative view

Congress is bloated with money, staff

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — It was the fashionable thing, a few years ago, to complain about the "imperial presidency," and to urge that the legislative branch be strengthened. Editors, columnists and professors of political science were calling on Congress to restore a balance. The trouble is, Congress listened.

Kilpatrick

The results are appalling. While the executive agencies have been putting on weight, the Congress itself has come down with a bad case of bloat. The Senate has two enormous office buildings and is erecting a third. The House has three and is planning a fourth. The morning and evening traffic jams on Capitol Hill surpass the peak-hour frenzies of Manhattan. Whatever the problems of the legislative branch may be, they are not problems of money or staff.

Sen. Jesse Helms, North Carolina's Republican gadfly, has been pulling together some figures. His particular concern is the proliferation of committees and subcommittees. These have multiplied like hamsters. By Helms' count, the Senate alone has 174 subcommittees. The House has 170 subcommittees, 25 of them created in the current Congress. It is only a matter of time, says Helms, before the subcommittees spin off subcommittees of their own.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, the Arkansas Democrat, also is raising cries of alarm. Bumpers recently commented upon the skyrocketing increase in appropriations for running the Senate. These have more than doubled over the past six years, from $55 million in 1970 to $127 million in 1976.

The picture is substantially the same on the House side. Six years ago it cost $109 million to operate the House. In 1976 the figure was $229 million. For fiscal '77, the House last week hit the taxpayers for $241.7 million. Six years ago the House had a payroll of 6,767 persons. The current payroll lists 10,481.

In this jungle of committees and subcommittees, the members rush from tree to tree. Says Helms: "We have more meetings and hearings to attend than is humanly possible." He himself is a member of two standing committees, one joint committee, one select committee and eight subcommittees. The typical senator serves, after a fashion, on 14 subcommittees. Some senators serve on 20.

The House has a similar confusion. Last year the standing committees of the House held 895 meetings; the subcommittees held 3,075. Even the most conscientious members cannot keep up with the crowded schedule.

A number of senators — Helms and Bumpers, Moss of Utah, Goldwater of Arizona — are whacking away in the upper chamber. Various proposals are being advanced, on both sides of the aisle, to consolidate committees and to reduce the number of subcommittees. Under one plan, which seems to be attracting bipartisan support, the Senate's 31 committees would be cut back to 12. Each senator would be limited to two committee assignments. The number of subcommittees would be cut to perhaps 80 or 100.

Any such reform, of course, would demand an exhibition of sacrificial statesmanship not often seen on the floor of either house. A chairmanship carries perquisites; it embraces the power to hire staff; chairmen get their names in the papers. Asking a senator or congressman to give up a chairmanship is like asking Idi Amin to give up his medals. Wholesale reform isn't likely, but desperation may drive the members to some modest improvement.

Helms has another idea. He is a great dreamer. He urges a revolutionary change that would permit members of the minority party to serve as subcommittee chairmen. This is heresy; it is the unthinkable thought. At present, only one Republican senator — Hruska of Nebraska — serves as a subcommittee chairman. The majority generously has permitted the venerable Nebraskan to head a subcommittee on federal charters, holidays and celebrations.

Helms' idea is sound. All senators are supposed to be equal. By excluding minority senators from every leadership position, the Democratic majority does violence to the constitutional principle of equal representation among the states. This violence, alas, is certain to continue. A little reform may be forthcoming; some small part of the bloat may be reduced. But neither chamber has the will to stick to the no-starch diet required for a healthy body.

Art Buchwald How not to think of lust

WASHINGTON—The day that Jimmy Carter's famous quotes from Playboy were released was also the same day he issued a paper on how to save the American family. Mr. Carter has said that he is very concerned about what is happening to the American family, and if he becomes President one of his priorities will be to bring it back together again.

Buchwald

Well, I must say the Playboy interview didn't do much in our family to heal any wounds.

For those who have been down in a coal mine all week and haven't read what Mr. Carter told Playboy, he admitted that he has looked at a lot of women with lust. But he said God forgives sinners, including adulterers. "This is something God recognizes I will do," he was quoted as saying, "... and I have done it... and God forgives me for it. But that doesn't mean that I condemn someone who not only looks on a woman with lust, but who leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock."

The problem with this thinking is that while God is willing to forgive men for lustful thoughts, most wives aren't—at least not where I live.

The night after Mr. Carter's views were publicized I went to a dinner party at a friend's house where there were some very attractive wives and single women.

When we got home my wife said, "I saw you lusting after Florence Penwyweather."

"I wasn't lusting after her," I protested. "I was talking to her about tax cuts for the median class of American who makes an average of $12,000 a year."

"You were lusting while you were talking."

"How do you know that?"

"I saw it in your eyes."

"That wasn't lust," I protested. "The look was caused by my eyeglasses. You see, when you wear bifocals they give off this odd effect that some people could interpret as lust. Ask any optometrist."

"Are you trying to tell me you weren't committing adultery in your heart when you sat on a stool at her feet?"

"Adultery was the furthest thing from my mind. I was breathing heavily because I had too much chicken cacciatore."

"Jimmy Carter says he's committed adultery in his heart many times."

"But he's from Georgia. They have nothing else to do down there. I live in Washington where none of us has time for such thoughts."

She said, "Well, he says God forgives him when he does it, but I'm telling you right now, if I ever catch you committing adultery in your heart you can pack your bags."

"You'll never catch me," I assured her. "There are some men who lust after women and there are others who don't. You're fortunate to be married to one who doesn't."

"Don't tell me you've never had a fantasy about having an affair with another woman?"

"What's an affair?"

"What President Ford said he would never approve of his daughter Susan having."

"Oh, that kind of an affair," I said. "The answer is no. The Lord said to think of having one is the same thing as having one, and frankly since I've been playing tennis, I tire easily."

"Well, at least Jimmy Carter is man enough to admit his sins," she said bitterly.

"That's unfair. Just because Carter confessed he lusts after women in his heart doesn't prove everyone in the country does. Gerry Ford bumps his head every time he gets out of a helicopter. That doesn't mean every other man has to bump his head."

"There were several other husbands at the party lusting after women," she said.

"If they were, I can't criticize them," I said, "because that would be a sin of pride, which Carter said is worse than lust."

"How can I believe that whenever we go out to a party you are not committing adultery in your heart?"

"As Carter would say, 'Trust me.'"

"Oh, dear—I forgot to tell Charles we mined the tennis court."

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — A mysterious group of Texas oilmen, bound by blood, marriage and the corporate bond, have quietly been funneling thousands of dollars to politicians who champion oil interests.

The Texans own and operate the Quintana Petroleum Corporation, although one would hardly know it since the oilmen, according to a company official, "don't like to have anything publicized about it."

This penchant for secrecy, apparently, is the reason the Quintana crowd failed to list their connections with the company on several federal campaign contribution forms. Such omissions raised the official curiosity of the Federal Election Commission.

The group works closely with ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally's Houston law firm. A member of the firm, William H. Drushel Jr., actually maintains an office at Quintana. In the past, Connally has distributed oil money to favored politicians.

The Quintana crowd has concentrated this year on rewarding members of Congress who support oil tax benefits. While the tax bill was being drafted this spring, the Quintana executives and their wives passed out $12,000 to five key members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

They were: James Jones, D-Okla., $3,200; Donald Clancy, R-Ohio, $2,700; Philip Crane, R-Ill., $2,500; William Steiger, R-Wis., $2,400, and Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., $1,200.

Except for Clancy, all of these congressmen have received 100 per cent favorable ratings from the Independent Petroleum Association of America. Clancy's voting record was rated by the IPAA at a slightly less satisfactory 75 per cent.

The Quintana bunch delivered an additional $3,200 to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., another champion of the oil industry, with a 93 per cent IPAA rating. He also happens to be a power on the Senate Finance Committee, which handled the tax bill in the Senate. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who has favored the oil interest, got at least $2,100.

Another darling of the oil industry, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., collected $4,400 from the Quintana bunch. His fidelity to petroleum interests is measured at 93 per cent on the IPAA scale.

The money men from Quintana also appear to have an enemies list. One congressman on the list is Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., who holds a zero rating with IPAA. The Quintana crowd has pumped $4,400 into the campaign of his opponent, Nick Gerhardt.

Our reporters sometimes found the Quintana money difficult to trace. On May 14, for example, seven Quintana officials simultaneously donated $100 apiece to the aforementioned Clancy. Another Quintana executive and his wife coughed up $1,000 each. Still another executive gave $200.

Our reporters, Gary Cohn and Jim Grady, made repeated phone calls to Quintana's Houston headquarters during their attempt to put the jigsaw pieces together. Corporate spokesmen refused to provide the identities of the Quintana people or the correct spelling of their names.

One spokesman said that attorney William Drushel had passed the word to all Quintana officials that they were "not to confirm or deny any information to either Mr. Cohn or Mr. Grady." The attorney did not return any of our numerous calls.

The most one spokesman finally would say was that Quintana was "a family business."

Footnote: This isn't the first time Quintana has been in hot water. Last year, a House subcommittee accused Quintana of "probably" violating federal laws by needlessly delaying development of a natural gas field. A drop in the anticipated production brought pressure on the Federal Power Commission to permit gas prices to go up.

POLITICAL REWARD: President Ford has replaced a distinguished career diplomat as ambassador to the Bahamas with a political crony.

The appointee is Wisconsin's former lieutenant governor, Jack Olson, who is better known for his political connections than his diplomatic skills. He labored hard for Ford's nomination last month at the Republican convention.

Olson will replace Seymour Weiss, a perceptive State Department strategist, who has the special skills needed to deal with the crisis in the Caribbean. The Bahamas are wracked with internal problems, ranging from gambling and narcotics to political turmoil.

There is also a growing anti-white, anti-American sentiment.

By all accounts, Olson is an honest, decent businessman, with political experience. A White House spokesman described Olson as a "good and well qualified" appointee. But the deposed Weiss is far more qualified for the post.

Don't drop sales tax

The vote-hungry politicians of Missouri are proposing to take the sales tax off of food and drugs. Before you vote for this bill, or fail to vote at all, stop and think this over.

Many freeloaders who will not work pay no other taxes because they have no taxable income and own no real estate. They pay taxes only when they spend your money. If sales taxes are reduced in any way, you the working people will make up the difference because government is not going to lower its expenses. You will pay more taxes on your income, real estate and other sales taxes.

The sales tax is the most equitable tax system ever used. I believe the sales tax should be the only source of government finance. Think and vote!

Designer puts romance in girls' fashion

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer
Gypsy dresses with ballet russe kerchiefs and wide Cluny lace trim, Victorian styles with big sleeves, prairie dresses, tabards, lace jumpsuits with cinched-in beaded ribbon belts for the holiday cruise collection.

Such descriptions may sound like couture fashions for women who want to make the best dressed list, but they are, instead, among new styles being turned out for the lollipop set — a whole new look that should separate the girls from the boys, says designer Doree Selevan of Miami. And if that doesn't do it, the new bouffant petticoats will — they'll be in stores come spring.

"Little girls like to dress up and they enjoy clothes that emulate young juniors or older sister, the grown-up feeling that makes them want to walk and sit properly," says Doree, who has been designing clothes for little girls for 20 years, and heads her own dress business.

More mothers are allowing their children to select clothes right off the racks so clothes must have hanger appeal, she says. Many of her back-to-school fashions were in whimsy in jumpers, blouses, shirts, calicos and plaids with such imaginative touches as pockets that say "carfare," "lunch money," or whatever.

Doree's enthusiasm makes it clear that little girl fashions are no longer neutral kid stuff, even though jeans and pants are still popular. "This dress is great with boots; this lace jumpsuit is going like wildfire with buyers (she is now making it in toddler sizes); this dress has an adorable little over-the-shoulder bag; a large golden pin is worn on this kilt skirt."

She doesn't like tan or brown for little girls. "It makes them look sallow." She prefers pastels, rich dark greens, red and navy combinations, which she considers neat and trim for school.

"Collars really frame a little girl's face and I like soft ruffles — they are pretty and flattering. I use big hems to extend the life of the dress, and until now I've taken a strong stand on lowering skirts. But I recently saw French and Italian children wearing kneelength skirts and I thought it looked quite smashing, so they'll be in the spring line."

In designing clothes away from the garment center of New York, she isn't "brain-washed by outside forces" but she doesn't really care anyway what other people are doing. Her success in stores is an indication that she is on the right track, she says.

"Our Cuban workers do some hand work, little French knots and the like that may decorate collars, pockets, bibs, but mainly the trimmings come from Europe—embroideries from Switzerland, Alencon-type laces from France, braids from Germany and Italy. Quality buttons from the United States are now getting scarce," she says.

A hard worker, she even maintains an apartment at the factory where she has 250 workers, and she has parlayed her firm, Dorissa, into a three-quarter of a million dollar enterprise in 10 years. Her husband, Bernard, has been handling the finances for seven years.

She has managed to combine motherhood — three boys and a girl now in their 20s — with her business enterprises through the years, but somehow when she designs her fashions "it is like I'm designing them for my own little child," she says. "I get carried away."

Feminine fashions

Designer Doree Selevan, of Miami, is lavish with ribbons, ruffles and embroidery in her new creations for little girls. The feminine check gingham floor length dress with a separate pinafore, top, and white lace jumpsuit add up to flattering fashions for the young set.

Parents Without Partners helps families

Single parents and their children have special problems including being somewhat isolated and difficulty in providing a reasonable equivalent to normal family life. There is a non-profit organization in Sedalia to provide support and help to these people.

Parents Without Partners is for the widowed, divorced, separated or never-marrieds who are bringing up children alone or who, though not having custody of the children, often pay child support and have visitation rights.

Since there are no requirements for membership other than that one be single and a parent, PWP represents a cross-section of those who have suffered marriage termination, have children to worry about and are going through a reorganization in their lives.

The Sedalia chapter has 55 members ranging in age from 20 to 70. Approximately 25 of these members are men and 30 are women. They come from a variety of occupations, ministers, construction workers, secretaries, postal employees, high school and college instructors, store owners, hospital employees, farmers, beauticians, factory workers, firemen, college students and retired people. The local chapter has members from Sedalia, Warsaw, Knob Noster, Warrensburg, Pilot Grove, Sweet Springs, Marshall, Windsor, Cross Timbers, Otterville, Barnett, Leeton, and Blackburn.

The group sponsors many activities each month for the family and for adults. The schedule for October includes four dances, trick or treating and a Halloween party for the children, family bowling and let's eat out nights and discussion and meeting nights one of which features the Rev. Robert Scholes, psychologist and high school counselor, who will speak on the Psychological Aspects of being Single.

On the national level, PWP provides information on uniform divorce code, uniform custody and child support systems, rights recently assured by legislation ending credit discrimination based on sex and marital status and child care and development.

The national group works with the children of single parents through its International Youth Council and gives scholarships to children of single parents on the basis of scholastic achievement, character and personality, participation in school and community affairs and financial need.

Officers of the Sedalia chapter are Barbara Dunham, president; Harvey Sylvester, vice-president; Ann Anderson, secretary; Judy Tipton, treasurer; and Nolan Holman, membership director.

Newsletter party

This newsletter assembly party is just one of the activities of Parents Without Partners. The group has activities planned for 21 of the 31 days in October.

Blind mother gives swimming lessons

By JIM GORSLINE
Albuquerque Journal

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — When the Central Branch YMCA offered a mom-to swim program recently, Kathy Claus decided it was a good idea to teach her baby to swim.

Mrs. Claus is blind, but that doesn't hamper her as she guides her 6-month-old daughter, Kendra, through the basics of swimming.

The class teaches tots to be confident in the water.

"I really don't think children should be afraid of water," Mrs. Claus said. "If something should happen to them around water, then it may affect them for the rest of their lives."

"I never force Kendra to do the kicking. There are some days when we don't get anything done. It depends on her mood. We usually do well, though."

The class teaches the fundamentals of kicking and going under water. It also teaches the parents not to panic if something goes wrong.

"Some of the parents are a bit uneasy about taking their kids in the water, including me," said Jeanny LaCour, class instructor. "I was a little leery about Kathy taking the class but she's handled it very well. She has a good, positive attitude."

Lorraine Lujan, a class member, agreed. "From what I've seen, Kathy seems to be doing fine. She dresses the baby, takes care of her and asks for no assistance. She has a lot of courage and she does great."

"I think it's nice to see a baby do something new," Mrs. Claus said. "I learned to swim early, but not like this. I enjoy the time I spend with Kendra and we have a lot of fun."

8-3 win pulls Oakland 1 game closer to K.C.

OAKLAND (AP) — The opening of a do-or-die series with the Kansas City Royals brought out the best in the Oakland A's and the beast in some of their fans.

"It was a tough game, a big one to win. But it means nothing unless we win the rest of them," Phil Garner said early today after an 8-3 victory which left the A's 3½ games behind first-place Kansas City with six games to go in the American League West race.

The start of the Monday night baseball game, which drew a crowd of 37,914, was delayed more than an hour because of rain. Two fights, one on the field between the player and the second between fans and Kansas City players, stopped play in the decisive sixth inning.

The Detroit at Cleveland game was postponed because of rain. No other games were scheduled Monday.

"Things are tense and any little thing can set off something like that," said the Royals' George Brett, referring to the brawl which broke out on the field after Dennis Leonard hit the A's Don Baylor with a pitch.

Pitch ignites tempers

OAKLAND (AP) — Don Baylor of the Oakland A's, after getting hit by a pitch in the sixth inning Monday night, charged after Kansas City pitcher Dennis Leonard and touched off a general brawl between the A's and Royals on the field.

After the fighting on the field ended, fans sitting behind the Royals' bullpen in right field started fighting with Kansas City players there. The Royals players on the field and in the dugout raced to the bullpen to assist their mates, and they were showered with beer and debris by spectators.

The fighting caused about a 15-minute delay in the game, which started more than an hour late because of rain.

Leonard, who had just thrown a home run ball to Bando, making the score 5-3 Oakland, was taken out for a reliever after the incident.

Baylor was ejected from the game. It appeared there were no injuries to players in the fighting.

ing to the brawl which broke out on the field after Dennis Leonard hit the A's Don Baylor with a pitch.

"I thought everyone was coming out to shake my hand because I hit a homer," Sal Bando joked later. His leadoff home run gave the A's and pitcher Vida Blue, 18-12, a 5-3 worst language in the league in this ballpark."

Catchers Bob Stinson and John Wathan leaned into the stands and slugged it out with some of the beer-throwing fans in seats behind the Royals' right-field bullpen and teammates helped out in the battle before things settled down. Then the game resumed and the A's scored three more runs, two on a double by Garner, off four relievers before the sixth ended.

"We went dead after the fighting. It seemed like it went on forever," said Brett, and the Royals learned after the game that reliever Steve Mingori came out of the brawl with an injured knee.

The Royals had tied the score at 3-3 with two runs in the fifth, one on Brett's double. But Ron Fairly, who had homered to break a 1-1 tie in the third, doubled to open the bottom of the fifth and scored from third on a groundout for the go-ahead run. He threw out Al Cowens at the plate on a brilliant fielding play in the sixth, protecting the 4-3 lead.

Waiting 'n waiting 'n waiting

Third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals stands waiting for a throw that never came from first baseman John Mayberry as Oakland's Bill North waits to see if the coast is clear before getting up. North moved from first to third on this third-inning play, when Royals' pitcher Dennis Leonard tried a pick-off. The ball got by Mayberry allowing North to go all the way to third. Kansas City went on to lose 8-3 and saw their lead in the A.L. West lead dwindle to three and one-half games. (UPI)

Buckeyes fall to 8th; MU takes over 12th

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Dorsett remembers leaner years when the University of Pittsburgh football team would get especially aroused to meet a highly ranked foe.

"Now the shoe is on the other foot," Dorsett said Monday after Pitt jumped from third to second behind Michigan in The Associated Press college football poll.

"A few years ago, Pitt had no ranking and no respect," added Dorsett, who has 4,540 career yards rushing going into Saturday's game at Duke.

"I remember how it was always easy to get mentally fired up when we played teams like Notre Dame, Southern Cal and Oklahoma."

"Now other teams feel the same way about us. Beating Pitt can make their season, and they all come after us. Our being No. 2 will just make them try harder."

Dorsett was a senior at nearby Hopewell High School in 1972 when Pitt labored through a 1-10 season.

The Panthers of Coach Johnny Majors are 3-0 this year after victories over Notre Dame, Georgia Tech and Temple.

Unranked Temple led 7-6 at halftime Saturday before Dorsett keyed a second-half surge that rallied Pitt to 21-7 triumph. And the feeling at Pitt was that the Panthers might slip a bit in the rankings.

However, previously second-ranked Ohio State was

Tigers brace for Jays' wishbone

By RON HIGGINS
Staff Sports Writer

Head coach Bob Fletcher and the Smith-Cotton Tiger football team hope they can keep their winning spirit when they travel to Jefferson City Friday night to meet the host Jays in the Tigers' first Central Missouri Conference meeting this season.

The Tigers, fresh from a 19-12 victory over St. Joseph Lafayette Friday night in Jennie Jaynes Stadium, began preparing for the Jays in their favorite type weather—cool.

Dodger field boss Walter Alston... decides 23 years is enough

Alston steps down after 23 years

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After 23 consecutive one-year contracts to manage the Dodgers, Walter Alston has stepped down, saying, "There comes a time when you need to take a little rest."

The 64-year-old Alston, known as the "Quiet Man" from Darrtown, Ohio, made his decision Monday. After a round of golf, he told Los Angeles Dodgers management and it was announced at a late afternoon news conference during which Alston said he would remain with the National League club in a front office capacity.

"Baseball has been good to me," he said. "But there comes a time when you get enough of everything. This has been quite a day. It's the first time I ever got three birdies playing golf in one day and I'm retiring."

Thus ends one of baseball's greatest chapters, one which started in 1954 in Brooklyn at the end of Jackie Robinson's career, continued to the team's first world title in 1955, through the opening of the West to baseball in the late 1950s and then through the years of glory with Sandy Koufax and a succession of teams that rarely scored yet won championships.

No successor was named immediately, but Walter O'Malley, chairman of the Board of the Dodgers, said his son Peter, General Manager Al Campanis and Alston would sit down soon and decide on who will become the next Dodgers' field boss.

"What do they say? The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat? I've had my share of those," said Alston. "Announcing it now gives Peter a chance to find someone else."

Almost to a man, the Dodgers' players said it was a sad day.

"I'm disappointed," said Don Sutton. "I've played for the man for 11 years and he's been honest every minute of it. There are so many opportunities to be up and down in this game, but he's stayed on an even keel, and that imparts consistency to the ball club."

"He set the standards for all other managers to match," said first baseman Steve Garvey, the NL's most valuable player in 1974, Alston's last pennant year.

Alston won four World Series titles and seven pennants for the Dodgers and only two men in the history of the game have managed one club longer — Connie Mack, 50 years with the Philadelphia Athletics and John McGraw, 31 with the New York Giants.

The Dodgers, despite massive attendance no matter how they did on the field, finished 20 games behind Cincinnati in 1975 and were 10 games behind the Reds when Alston made his announcement.

"It's a shame 30 guys didn't bust their butts for him this season," said catcher Steve Yeager. Alston took a lot of the blame for the team's poor showing in 1975 and 1976.

Walter O'Malley, who hired the then-unknown Alston to the newspaper cries of "Who?", later said Alston would manage until the day he decided to retire.

Monday that day came.

Rozelle defends drafting system

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Is the professional football draft a conspiracy to suppress the salaries of National Football League players?

"When I hear that, I always refer back to school days," said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle Monday.

"When you were picking teams, how did you do it? You tossed a bat in the air, then put one hand on top of each other's to see who went first. They even have a draft in Pop Warner football."

"There are no salaries involved. It's simply a way to achieve some sort of competitive balance."

Rozelle, in Kansas City for a United Way luncheon, said a Sept. 8 ruling in which U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant declared the NFL draft and other player movement restrictions illegal, would result in two options for the league.

"You'll either get a bargaining agreement between the owners and the players, which will then get ratified in Washington so they can proceed. In that case, the players could get some of their demands met and the owners would probably approve some $15 million in fringe benefits," Rozelle said at a news conference.

"If there is no agreement, we'll fight through a series of appeals in the courts and the owners probably won't grant any fringe benefits. And by the time it's resolved, a lot of NFL players will be out of football."

Rozelle answered complaints that the draft was unsuccessful in creating parity in the NFL by saying, "It's a hell of a lot better than nothing. The draft and compensation permit management, the draft and player talent to determine who wins, not money."

He also noted that a recent trend of upsets indicated some sort of equality.

"It's not like the old baseball days. Then you just knew the St. Louis Browns weren't going to beat the New York Yankees."

On another matter, Rozelle stood by his decision to fine two Oakland Raider players for misconduct in the Pittsburgh-Oakland game Sept. 12.

"If there's an unusual incident away from the action that could result in harm or injury to a player, I've got to take action. That's why I levied the fines," he said.

"If you looked at the Monday night football highlights, there was one play involving Atkinson and Lynn Swan. I didn't need Chuck Noll (Steelers' coach) to point that out for me."

But the NFL commissioner discounted the idea that there was a trend for more such violence.

"I don't think there's any criminal element in the game," Rozelle said. "It's just an emotional game and some people are more susceptible to that than others."

St. Louis teams hold top spots in prep poll

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Two St. Louis area schools dominated the top of their classes, but honors for two other classes went to schools on the western side of the state in the weekly poll of the Missouri Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association.

Ladue led Class 4-A with a 3-0-0 record, keeping a position it held last week. Joplin Parkwood occupied the number two spot again this week, with a 4-0-0 record. St. Louis U-High remained in third place, with 3-0-0. Other teams in the top ten, in order, were Riverview Gardens, St. Louis Southwest, Columbia Hickman, Raytown, Hazelwood Central, St. Louis Summer and Sikeston.

A 4-0-0 record allowed St. Louis Chaminade to remain in the number one position it held last week in Class 3-A. It was followed by second-ranked Caruthersville, with a 3-0-0 record. Jackson moved up a position to number three, boasting a 4-0-0 record. Following in 3-A were Joplin Memorial, Duchesne, St. Genevieve, Manual, St. Borgia, Jefferson City Helias, and St. Pius.

The Class 2-A top ranking went to St. Joseph LeBlond, a position it holds again this week, with a 3-0-1 record. Lexington remained number two, at 4-0-0. Third place was captured by Kearney, which has a 4-0-0 season thus far. Other teams in order of rank were St. Mary's, John Burroughs, Mt. Vernon, Brentwood, Scotland County, St. Louis Country Day and Sherwood.

Norborne remained the number one Class 1-A team this week, with a 4-0-0 record. Tarkio, with a 3-0-0 record, remained second. Third was again captured by King City, at 3-0-0. Other ranked teams were, in order, Cass Midway, Greenfield, Milan, North Platte, Hardin Central, Santa Fe and Drexel.

'Skins win in overtime

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Washington Redskins presented Coach George Allen with his 100th National Football League victory and the veteran coach's quick thinking on the sidelines had more than a little to do with the triumph.

Mark Moseley booted a 29-yard field goal 12 minutes and 49 seconds into a sudden death period of Monday night's nationally televised game to give the unbeaten Redskins a 20-17 triumph over the Philadelphia Eagles. But there would have been no sudden death, no victory without Allen.

The 54-year-old Allen, in his 11th season as a NFL coach, made himself a factor in the game with 12 seconds left in the first half. The Eagles led 10-3, and had a third-down-and-six at their 35-yard line.

Washington's defense started to leave the field figuring the clock would run out, but Allen, ever alert, waved his defenders back and shouted for a time out.

"I called time out and told them to blitz, try to hit them on the exchange of the ball," Allen explained. "I felt that with 12 seconds left if we stopped them there, we'd go for the blocked punt."

The Skins blitzed and Harold McLinton and Dave Butz hit Eagles' ball carrier Herb Lusk like a couple of trucks. Lusk fumbled the ball in the air, and Washington linebacker Brad Dusek picked it off and raced 32 yards for a touchdown. Moseley kicked the point and it was 10-10 at halftime.

Sixty-two seconds earlier, the Redskins had a fourth-down-and-10 at the Eagles' 33. Moseley set up for a field goal. The Eagles didn't charge, so holder Joe Theismann picked up the ball and ran 16 yards for a first down at the 17 on the fake kick. The Skins wound up with a 27-yard field goal.

Thus, Allen's quick strategy resulted in 10 points in 62 seconds and turned a 10-0 deficit into a tie. The Skins had been outrun, outpassed, outthrust for 30 minutes, but not thought or outscored.

In the third period, Mike Thomas ran 27 yards to wrap up a six-play, 57-yard drive and send the Skins ahead 17-10. Then the defense took over. Twice the Eagles drove to the Washington 10, and twice they were frustrated with end zone pass interceptions. Former Eagle Joe Lavender picked off one, and Pat Fischer the other.

Moseley's winning kick was set up by an interception by Eddie Brown, who returned eight yards to the Eagles' 22. Calvin Hill carried twice for 12 and 6 yards to the four. A holding penalty set the Skins back 10, and then Moseley, also a former Eagle, kicked the winning points.

Philadelphia took a 10-0 lead with a 22-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann in the first period and Art Malone's second-period 16-yard TD run. After the Eagles fell behind 17-10, quarterback Mike Boryla directed a nine-play, 73-yard scoring drive. The march started with 2:09 to play and ended on a 41-yard TD bomb to Charley Smith with 1:07 on the clock, sending the game into sudden death.

South ruffed the third spade and studied the whole play of the hand. He felt certain that West would hold the king of diamonds and his problem was to avoid the loss of a diamond, a club and his contract.

He decided to work out a way to use dummy's fourth spade to throw West in the lead and end play him.

He started to run off all his trumps. West discarded a spade on the second lead and the six of diamonds on the third lead. Meanwhile, East had been doing some thinking of his own. South was not planning to ruff anything in dummy. Hence, his hand must consist of two spades, six trumps, two diamonds and three clubs. In that case he could afford to chuck a club and dropped the queen. South played out his last two trumps.

West saw what was happening and dropped his nine and jack of diamonds to blank his king. A club and diamond were played from dummy and East let two of his baby diamonds go.

The ace and king of clubs were cashed and South was in dummy for a three-card ending. Dummy held a spade, diamond and club. West held one of each suit also, but South did not know that. As far as South could tell West might well be holding a spade and two diamonds.

South decided that he was. He led dummy's spade, chucked his club and was down one when West was able to lead a club to his partner.

Ask the Jacobys

North opens one spade, South responds two clubs, North jumps to three notrump. South bids four clubs. Our reader wants to know if that four-club bid is a force.

The answer is yes. South is probably interested in getting to a slam.

PRISCILLA'S POP

Ann Landers

O. J. Simpson No. 1 hero?

Dear Ann Landers: Some papers around the U.S. and Canada didn't think your poll was accurate. ("If you had it to do over again would you have children?") So they ran their own poll and their findings were very different from yours.

I'm not surprised. When you look at the facts, you discover the Kansas City Star polled 409 people. Newsday in Long Island polled 1,373. Your poll reflected the thinking of over 10,000 people — and all who wrote to you did so on their own. Nobody solicited them.

Don't they realize when a newspaper asks a personal question (poll or no poll) the person queried is scared to death that his (or her) identity might be revealed? Of course he's going to play it safe. The last thing a parent wants known is that he wishes his kids were never born.

Just to give you an idea of what polls mean, here's a grabber: Recently one of the leading women's magazines polled 500 students, from 10 to 18 years of age. The question: "Who are your favorite heroes and heroines?"

Are you ready for this... O.J. Simpson was the No. 1 choice of both boys and girls. President Ford was No. 9, on the boys' list, right after Robert Redford and before Mary Tyler Moore. The President didn't even make the girls' list, but Henry Kissinger did. (President Ford was No. 10 on the composite list — both boys and girls.)

Ann Landers came right AFTER Patty Hearst. Gloria Steinem was four notches below Ann. Margaret Meade was two notches below Gloria. After Margaret Meade came the Maharishi, next, Charles Manson (yeah, you read right), then Jonas Salk (can you believe this?) followed by Julia Child, Abbie Hoffman and Andy Warhol.

What does this say to you, Ann? — Dumb-Founded

Dear D.F.: Nothing. I can't believe that poll reflects what the kids in our country really think. If it does, we're in big trouble.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm glad the story about Dr. Renee Richards, the tennis star who had a sex-change operation, was played up so big in the press. It's time people knew about such things.

My husband wants to do the same thing. I'm worried sick about our children. We have a boy, two, and a girl, four. What will it do to them? What should they call their father after he's had the operation? Thanks for your help. God knows I need it. — Deeply Concerned

Dear Concerned: It's bound to be hard on children when they discover they have two female parents and no father, so you'll have to do "double duty." They can call him Bill or Mary — whatever his name is or whatever he changes it to. "Daddy" for a woman just doesn't make it.

Dear Ann: My hobby is knitting. My husband says this is the sign of a weak mind. He claims anyone who can sit and do the same thing hour after hour is a moron, yet he can sit in front of the TV from 1:00 p.m. until midnight and watch junk geared for the mentality of an 11-year-old.

Last Christmas I made several pairs of argyle socks and everyone thought they were beautiful. Please comment. — The Knit Wit

Dear K.W.: Anyone who can produce an argyle sock has my undying admiration. During World War II, I knitted a pair of simple GI socks and was politely told that I could do my country a real service if I would knit for the Germans. Ignore the clod.

Trial in Eminence scheduled Nov. 8

AVA, Mo. (AP) — The trial of a young Ava man charged with felony murder in connection with the fatal shooting of a companion has been scheduled for Nov. 8 in Eminence.

The trial of Gary L. Dobbs, 19, was moved from Douglas County to Shannon County Monday on a change of venue.

Circuit Judge Winston Buford was to remain as judge in the case. He had been assigned to handle the case because of the large number of cases to be heard in Douglas County.

Dobbs was indicted for murder by a secret grand jury in the death of Edward L. Paul, 17, of Independence. Paul was felled by a blast of an Ava police officer's shotgun while the two young men and another companion fled after their vehicle allegedly struck the officer's police cruiser.

The grand jury ruled that the officer, Marvin Naugle, was acting in the line of duty when he shot Paul with a 12-gauge shotgun.
